FESTIVE FROCKS

Festive frocks for the Yuletide are in order right now. Everyone of you needs some smart little frocks to have at hand if the crowd should drop in for a morning of bridge, an afternoon dance or tea.

You will make no mistake if you choose a gay frock for such occaready to slip into. Bright red has that holly look to it that will keep you cheery through the cold days that follow the New Year. If you want more subdued color, you may prefer a little afternoon frock of one of the metal brocades, They are so glamorous. That little bit of bright color against a rich background will heighten the entire Festivity Via Trimming

For casual morning wear, just the frock to slip into if a few friends descended upon you unaware about the time you get up from the breakfast table, there is a scarlet jersey (left) that is made festive by its sweet trimming. It is a two-piece ittle frock, with the skirt box pleated below the waistline, in tricky The overblouse fits down over the hips, with its belt holding the blouse and lower portion in little gathers. There are fringed edges for the wee sleeves, the peplum and for the collar. But the piece de resistance of this frock is the twisted yarn lacing at the neck and the belf, which ends in pompons of chopped yarn. For the festive later-in-the-day hours, there is a charming metal cloth frock softly tailored with shawl collar, fitted lines, a one-sided hip yoke and very short sleeves fin-ished in beige fox. Beige colored flowers with clusters of gold and black are posed on a bright blue background. The material itself is gay as any party can be. And the restraint with which it is tailored in dressmaker fashion makes it an admirable frock for wear on many occasions.
